

Value of the Oak Ridge Reservation for Education

The Oak Ridge Research Park serves as a training ground for future researchers and students from kindergarten to graduate school, as well as faculty and community members. Research Park educational programs have reached more than 85,000 pre-college students and teachers during the past five years. In addition, the National Environmental Research Park, as a result of its designation as a User Facility for Oak Ridge National Laboratory, has attracted more than 700 students and researchers from colleges, universities, industries, and other state and federal government agencies over the past five years.
